

Lunch Bunch January Lesson Plans

January 5-7: Ringing in the New Year

Happy 2021! Who's excited to start a brand new year?! We will be sharing stories and songs from all over the world and exploring how different cultures celebrate a new year. We will make festive hats and re-enact our own countdown celebration. Dance party time!

January 11-14 Winter Sports

Ice skating, anyone? There are many fun ways to get the wiggles out and enjoy yourself in the colder months. We will share stories about the Winter Olympics and the Iditarod. We will even practice winter sports in the snow (crossing fingers for snow...) and make "medals" for us to take home. We will also explore yoga practice as well. Ommmm....

January 18-21 Let It Snow!

Again, we are going to hope for snow flurries this week! We have a few craft projects planned, along with new songs to learn about cold weather. A "faux snow ball fight" will be planned which is so much fun! Our science experiment on colored snow is always a big hit! Circle time will feature a new game or two so stay tuned!!

January 25-28 The Arctic

This is a near and dear one to my heart... I grew up in Alaska and love all things Winter! We will talk about day/ night cycles, animals and people who live in the Arctic. We have science experiments to demonstrate how items change in colder weather. We will also "faux ice fishing." I even have pics to share of the moose we used to feed in my backyard!
